

Hank and Lori Van Joslin

Hank Van Joslin

fyp - chipping away

How are things coming along on the masterpiece that is you? Has the board base been properly formed? Do you know what you stand for? How about the armor? Are these exterior plates protecting you?

What does the form of your roster project ... to those around you?

Although in this final piece the heart cannot be seen with the eyes, it shines greater than the finished, polished statue that is you. Carving out only the outer silhouette can leave an unfinished product.

Allow your heart to be formed and fashioned so that the sculpted work of genius that you are standing tall with a firm inner foundation that will stand the test of time.

We are very much like stone – hard to form but once completed – each and every one of us is a work of art.

So continue chipping away to complete yourself and each and everyday day polish yesterday's work so that no matter how far along you are – you always shine.