

MAKE YOUR VOTE COUNT 10 FOLD STARTING NOW

Without assuming what your desires are for the outcome of the upcoming presidential election, let me assume you have a strong opinion for where you want our country to go. You must know we are truly at a crossroads in 2016. Will we become like Europe or will we find our way back to the values of our founding fathers?

Living in Texas, particularly in The Woodlands, Texas, I have little doubt that a large majority of our peers are wanting the back-to-values direction, so how much campaigning do we need to do right here in our community? I, for one, am reaching out to anyone and everyone with whom I have any common tie — schools attended, professional associations, clients, vendors, as well as friends and relatives across the country — asking them the question, “how do you see The United States of American 20 years from now and why?”

Then letting them know that whether it has little effect on them or not (since most of my peers are financially set and in the last trimester of their life), they still need to vote to keep America America .

Hank Van Joslin